Some Summer Suggestions

If you contemplate an outing let me offer some summer suggestions. For instance:
Go to Colorado—cool Colorado—any time this month or next, stay there as long as you please, then come home via St. Louis and the World's Fair, with a stop of ten days there. We can give you a very low rate for such a trip and can mail you a Handbook that you will find very useful. It gives brief descriptions of more than fifty principal Colorado resorts, with the names, rates and plan of the hotels at each.

SLAIN MAN WAS A, SANTORO.

POLICE SEEK HIS MURDERER IN ITALIAN COLONY.

May Sweeney, by Whose Side He Was Shot, Says Slayer Is L. Annichiarico, Son of Italian Politician—Santoro's Wife, Hungry, Waited All Night at Window.

The Italian who was shot on a Staten Island train last night in a row over May Sweeney has been identified, as has his probable assailant. The dead man was Arturo Santoro of 560 Marcy avenue, Brooklyn, a married man and a recent arrival from Italy. The alleged murderer is Louis Annichiarico, and is the son of J. Annichiarico, a prominent Italian politician. May Sweeney is still held as a witness in jail, because her father doesn't like her ways.

When the Stapleton police court opened yesterday morning May Sweeney's father, mother and sisters were present. They had come to bail her out. Sweeney was told that the bail would be $2,000.

"Wait a minute," he said. "Who was my girl with when this row started?"

The magistrate pointed to Luigi Graepoli, who is held as a witness.

"A dog!" said Sweeney. "Was all the rest dog?"

"They were," said the magistrate.

"Well, if that's the kind of people she runs with she can bail herself out," said Sweeney, and he left the court. His wife and daughter begged him to return, but he never looked back as he boarded a car.

Last night Mrs. Sweeney circulated among her relatives and arranged to furnish bail this morning.

In another part of New York a quiet little scene in the tragedy was going on unknown to the police. Eight months ago Arturo Santoro, an Italian bank clerk, finished his term of military service in Italy and sailed for this country. A month ago, having found employment in a Baxter street bank, he sent for his wife, whom he married in Buenos Ayres four years ago, and his three-year-old daughter. On the fourth of July they had been here three weeks.

That afternoon Santoro started from the house, saying that he was going for a little walk. As pistols and firecrackers were popping outside his wife suggested that he take his revolver. He did so. With him he had all the money in the family, about $100. Santoro says $40.

Mrs. Santoro does not speak a word of English, knows absolutely no one in America, and had no money. She and her husband had been eating at restaurants, and there was no food in the house except a little bread. This she gave to her daughter. Yesterday she sat crying because of anxiety, and holding the baby, who was crying from hunger. Late yesterday afternoon she tried to find an Italian speaking person in the lodging house where she lives, but failed. So she went back and waited.

At 9 o'clock the news came. The messenger could speak only a little Spanish, but enough to tell her of her husband's death. It was an hour before the neighbors found an Italian girl, who translated it all.

Santoro and his wife are Italians higher in the social scale than the average immigrant. He had parents and brothers at Leone, Italy. She comes from Salerno.

Mrs. Santoro said positively last night that the ground under the tree in the park was where he was shot.

No revolver was found when his clothing was searched after his death. He had $40 when he left home. There were $31 in his pockets when searched.

The picnic accounts for the difference. The search for the murderer is going forward, mostly in Baxter street. It was believed yesterday that he had jumped from the train going over the trestle between Rosebank and Clifton. Here there is a twenty-five foot trestle and much swampy ground. There was a theory yesterday that he had leaped into the swamp, sank and drowned. It happens, however, that the ground under the tree is the site of a picnic. A twenty-five foot jump from a moving train to that surface would have been almost certain death. As there was no body in sight, the police revised their theories.

Further questioning of witnesses showed that the murderer probably jumped from the train soon after it left Rosebank. There the track is level with the earth. Between that point and Stapleton, where they took the body off, no one seemed to think of the occupying assassin. He had time before the police looked for him to get to New York by one of a dozen routes. As the instinct of Italian tongue is to seek cover with their own people, the squad of detectives moved on Baxter street.

The suspect's father is J. Annichiarico, a man of sufficient prominence among his own people to have a social club named after him. The son is spoken of as a ne'er-do-well. He is under $1,500 bonds to keep the peace, having beaten a street cleaner.

May Sweeney was calmer yesterday and told a more connected story. She had never seen Santoro until they met at the picnic. She had met Annichiarico before, but not frequently. She professed ignorance of his first name.

Coming back on the car, she says, Santoro sat beside her, talking.

Right up to the eve of the big July holiday the entire tailoring force is speeding along under high pressure, completing the Suits wanted for the "Fourth." So we rush into the gap with one of the best bargains of the year, dropping $25.00 and $28.00 Suits to $16.50—to keep the machinery going. One of the times when it really pays to play a losing game. Choose from the popular summer fabrics—fancy tweeds, homespuns and chevrons, in the newest grays and browns. Your choice will be made up in either single or double breasted sack style, lined with fine mohair serge. The tailoring will be Macy standard.

proached and joined in the conversation. Santoro didn't like it, and said something in Italian.

"If he says that again, I'll fix him," said Annichiarico.

Santoro said it again. The other Italian drew at once, fired twice, hitting Santoro in the head and side, and drove through a window, all in a flash.

Down on Avenue B the relatives and neighbors of May Sweeney say they are surprised. She seemed such a nice girl and went to church regularly.

The Staten Island police believe the murderer is still in their territory. They say he could not have attempted to cross a ferry without being caught. But the New York police point out that throngs were crossing on the fourth of July, and it was quite possible for him to pass, unidentified, in the crowds.

Santoro's body will be sent to Brooklyn this morning.

IMPROVEMENTS AT CITY HALL.
Mayor's Office to Be Remodeled When the Ancient Plumbing Is Renewed.

The plans for the projected improvements to the City Hall were filed yesterday by Michael & Mitchell Bernstein, architects.

The improvements chiefly substitute a complete modern plumbing plant for the ancient fixtures. A fireproof tunnel, six and a half feet high, is to be built under the main corridors, and in this a large drain will be laid. The area wall of the hall is to be rebuilt in brick.

The private offices of the Mayor, adjoining the main reception room, are to be remodeled and larger quarters will be assigned to the Mayor's secretary. The offices of the Mayor's clerk, adjoining the Board of Estimate chamber, are also to be remodeled and finished with ornamental partitions of oak and glass and parquet floors.

NOT A LIBEL ON LAWYER HAWES.
Justice Truax Sustains a Demurrer to His Complaint Against Herr Corried.

A demurrer to the complaint in the libel action instituted against Herr Corried by Gilbert Ray Hawes, the lawyer who represents Frau Cosima Wagner in this country, was rendered yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Truax.

Mr. Hawes represented Frau Cosima Wagner and Siegfried Wagner in an action brought in the United States courts for an injunction to restrain the production of "Parsifal" at the Metropolitan Opera House during the past season. The injunction was refused.

Mr. Hawes alleged that in the controversy Mr. Corried had expressed the belief that Mr. Hawes had gone to Bayreuth and offered to prevent the performance of "Parsifal." He further alleged that he had demanded a retraction from Mr. Corried, to which demand the latter had paid no attention. Mr. Hawes sued for $100,000 damages.

Mr. Corried, through his counsel, Alexander & Colby, demurred to the complaint on the ground that it did not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action. In his opinion, Justice Truax says:

It is alleged that on Sept. 2, 1903, the plaintiff, through his counsel, Alexander & Colby, demurred to the complaint on the ground that it did not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action. In his opinion, Justice Truax says:
